

FELLOWSHIP AND SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS 2017-2018

The following is a list of the winners of all GSAS-administered fellowship competitions. It does not include the winners of the many non-GSAS fellowship competitions and may not indicate where students have declined the award.

GRADUATE STUDENTS WIN FULBRIGHT GRANTS FOR RESEARCH ABROAD

A total of eight Cultural Exchange Fulbright grants from the Institute of International Education (IIE) were made to GSAS students that will allow them to conduct dissertation or other advanced research abroad next year. Below are the students and their topics:

IIE Fulbright Awards

Mycah Brazelton-Braxton, East Asian Languages and Civilizations

Against the Mechanical Eye: Ei-Q and his Rejection of the Photographic Image

This project examines the intersection of art and photographic media in Japan on the eve of World War Two. The focus, the artist Ei-Q, challenged the factual and documentary techniques of the New Photography Movement, which dominated experimental Japanese art in the early 1930s. Ei-Q combined photography and painting with surrealist methods and thus transformed photography into a site of creative endeavor and unconscious expression.

Michelle Choi, Anthropology

South Korean "Unification Preparation": Preparing for the Uncertain National Future

My dissertation research is an ethnographic study of South Korean "unification preparation" (t'ongil chunbi). In order to investigate how institutional actors are concretely preparing for an uncertain national future, I will conduct an in-depth participant-observation of one "unification preparation" institution in Seoul. My research will demonstrate that "unification preparation" is giving rise to a new South Korean predictive science.

Julia Cross, East Asian Languages and Civilizations

Living Buddha Bodies of Japan from the 8th through the 14th centuries

This project explores the transformation that takes place in the history of Buddhist relics in Japan from the Heian (794-1185) through Kamakura (1185-1333) eras. Using Buddhist Studies and Art Historical methods, it attempts to understand relics as multifaceted objects that empowered specific religious groups via ritual practice, legend, and the mere physical presence of relics in communities as living buddhas.

Hardeep Dhillon, History

Moving Beyond the Nation: Discourses of Anticolonialism, Citizenship, and Rights Among Indians in the Twentieth Century

My dissertation explores the anticolonial discourses, and claims for citizenship and rights of migrant men from India in the early twentieth century. Through a critical study of letters, petitions, legal cases, surveillance reports, and imperial policies, it will illuminate how ideas of anticolonialism, citizenship, and rights are historically configured within India through a larger imperial history.

Philip Gant, East Asian Languages and Civilizations

Temple Litigation and Korea's Long Nineteenth Century

My project explores temple lawsuits as revealing (1) the diversity and complexities of Buddhist life; (2) the changing nature of litigation; and (3) the shifting state-society relationship in nineteenth century Korea. Based at SNU-Kyujanggak and working with the foremost scholars of the social and institutional history of Korean Buddhism, I will delve into archives, interface with legal historians, and meet with experts across Korea.

Patrick Meehan, History

A Promised Wilderness: The Landscapes of Medieval Prussia, c. 1370-1422

I am proposing an eight-month stay in Berlin, Germany to conduct archival research at the Geheimes Staatsarchiv Preußischer Kulturbesitz for my dissertation, an environmental approach to the history of late medieval Prussia (c. 1370-1422). This time will allow me to collect, process, and analyze over 4,000 unpublished sources documenting how Prussia's Christian colonizers managed and conceptualized the region's landscapes.

Dana Mirsalis, East Asian Languages and Civilizations

Female Shinto Priests: Gender and Politics in Contemporary Shinto

My dissertation investigates the role and status of women in the Shinto priesthood, focusing mainly on the postwar period (1945 to present). By studying the ways in which gender is being negotiated within the Shinto priesthood, we can gain a new perspective on contemporary conversations on gender politics within Japan. This project will combine archival and ethnographic research.

Adam Frost, East Asian Languages and Civilizations

"Speculators and Profiteers": The Entrepreneurs of Socialist China

Through analysis of private and public archives (in Shanghai and Beijing) and the collection of oral histories, this project aims to explore the hidden history of entrepreneurship in Socialist China. The research will seek to reveal the central role entrepreneurs played in the functioning of the socialist economy, thereby challenging existing conceptions of Maoist development as well as the origins of China's post-Reform economic success.
