

FELLOWSHIP AND SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS 2015-2016

The following is a list of the winners of all GSAS-administered fellowship competitions. It does not include the winners of the many non-GSAS fellowship competitions and may not indicate where students have declined the award.

GRADUATE STUDENTS WIN FULBRIGHT GRANTS FOR RESEARCH ABROAD

A total of six Cultural Exchange Fulbright grants from the Institute of International Education (IIE) were made to GSAS students that will allow them to conduct dissertation or other advanced research abroad next year. Below are the students and their topics:

IIE Fulbright Awards

Steffani Bennett, History of Art and Architecture

The China Years: Sesshu Toyo and Fifteenth-Century Chinese Painting

My proposed dissertation project explores the work of the fifteenth-century Japanese artist Sesshu Toyo (1420-1506) and how his travel to Ming China profoundly mediated his artistic practice and career, transforming the field of Muromachi-period painting in Japan. I will conduct archival and object-based research in Japan during the 2015 to 2016 academic year under the guidance of Professor Shima Arata and Gakushuin University in Tokyo.

Ernest (Billy) Brewster, East Asian Languages and Civilizations (Declined)

Between Faith and Logic: Buddhist Philosophy of Religion in Ming China

I am applying for the Fulbright Cultural Exchange Grant to spend a year as a Senior Visiting Student in the Department of Philosophy of Fudan University to conduct dissertation research on a period of Chinese history when Buddhism underwent a radical transformation in response to challenges from Western science and religion. My study shows how Buddhist scholars of the Ming Dynasty (1368-1644) drew from Buddhist logic and epistemology to defend their faith.

Deirdre Debruyn-Rubio, Religion

Cultivating Religious Citizens: Politics of Interfaith Organizations in France and the U.S.

Through a comparative ethnographic study of interfaith organizations in France and the United States, my dissertation examines how Muslim participants of interfaith organizations make sense of how to be religious citizens in democratic, secular societies. A Fulbright Research Grant will fund the French phase of my research, which I will contact at four major interfaith organizations in Paris.

Neelam Khoja, Near Eastern Languages and Civilizations

Historiography of South Asia: Writing 18th and 19th Century Histories of Punjab

My dissertation examines the challenging process of history writing in Punjab during a tumultuous, but remarkable, two hundred year period from 1700-1900. I will intertextually read Persian and Urdu histories and documents disclosing instructions for history writing, located in libraries and archives in India. My dissertation will contribute to the needed study of Punjab historiography, as relatively little scholarship exists on Punjab during this period.

David Porter, East Asian Languages and Civilizations

Ethnic and Status Identity in Qing China: The Hanjun Eight Banners

In my dissertation, I plan to examine the interplay between ethnic and status identity in late imperial China. In addition, I hope to consider the Qing Empire's (1644-1912) core military and social welfare system, the Eight Banners, in a broader global context as a status system that, like similar systems in other early modern states, tied social privilege to administrative and military service. A Fulbright grant will help me analyze the hybrid identity of the Eight Banners by using Qing archival sources, principally in Beijing, that record how the state constructed ethnic and status identity within the banner system, and how the relationship between those two sorts of identity changed over the course of the dynasty.

Kimberly Wortmann, Religion

Religious Tolerance in Islam: The Case of the Ibadhi Community of Zanzibar

My dissertation will focus on the Ibadhi Muslim minority community of Zanzibar and its effectiveness, since liberalization in the mid-1980s, in adopting an increasingly inclusive position towards other Muslims while also renewing a sense of local Ibadhi identity. Through interviews, observations, and archival work, I will examine how the main Ibadhi association in Zanzibar, Istiqaama, addresses sectarian biases at the institutional and societal levels.
